

READ Society

Our Privacy Policy

The READ Society collects personal information in order to provide literacy services and programs for children, youth and adults. This information is collected over the phone, in person, by mail, email, fax or via this website.

From time to time, general information is used by READ for planning and funding purposes. Personal information is kept secure and is not released without prior written approval by the individual or guardian.